The New Jersey Botanical Garden started life as Skylands, an estate in the grand manner. It features a 44-room Tudor Revival granite mansion designed by John Russell Pope. Skylands has 96 acres of formal and naturalized gardens and is surrounded by over 1,000 acres of meadows and woodlands. Purchased by the State in 1966 and officially designated as the New Jersey State Botanical Garden in 1984, the gardens contain approximately 5,000 species and varieties of trees, shrubs and flowers.

For you, the NJBG is an exciting and beautiful place to visit where you many enjoy each season's best. Members enjoy special events, festivals, lectures, and rewarding educational opportunities for both city and country gardeners.

Your membership dollars help care for this living natural history museum and enhance the New Jersey Botanical Garden.
